What is the NEC ARC?

The NEC Australian Rally Championship is a high performance six round National Rally Championship run in stunning forested countryside throughout Australia.

The NEC ARC is a highly competitive series, featuring a host of talented teams all racing the clock for the honour of being champion. The series has support from manufacturers Toyota and Ford and boosted by a host of top quality privateer teams all capable of notching wins.

The competition is incredibly close, with drivers trading stage times over the gravel and tarmac roads and often finish tenths of seconds ahead of their rivals.

In the forest the action is thrilling. Cars slide sideways through high-speed corners and dodge and dive over challenging crested roads as the teamwork between driver and co-driver is tested to the limit.

Each event supports the outright competition with a gala start and finish to ensure the fans get what they came for. Rallying is one of the most accessible and friendly motor sports in the world. Fans can easily mingle with teams, get autographs and have a talk to their heroes before the teams race off to the forest.

The competitive section of the rally starts on Friday night and runs on Saturday and Sunday, with points scored by the top ten placed teams on each day. The final victor is decided by the most successful combination over the two days of competition.
